Conditions for passing the subject: During the semester, the doctoral student is required to prepare a scientific or scholarly publication in a non-Slovak journal, based on the guidelines of the supervisor. The subject is fulfilled by the doctoral student if his/her study has been published in a journal published abroad in the semester in question or in the semester before. The publication will be certified by the subject supervisor and will be used as a basis for entering the completion of the subject in the AIS. If the publication of the paper is delayed through no fault of the doctoral student, the subject supervisor may accept the completion of the subject on the basis of a certificate issued by the editorial office. The certificate must state that the paper will be published by the editorial office. Evaluation: a - passed b – not passed
Results of education: Knowledge: The doctoral student will acquire additional knowledge of the subject area during the preparation of the publication. In the course of the doctoral thesis, the researcher will acquire knowledge of the methodology and professionalism of scientific work. Acquires knowledge of the scientific culture and publication expectations abroad. Adapts to the conditions abroad and deepens the knowledge of the language of the subject. Competences: The doctoral student will acquire competence in the preparation of a specialised or scientific publication. By fulfilling specific criteria for foreign journals, the student will become proficient in meeting international criteria. Attitudes: The doctoral student will acquire attitudes in the course of his/her work which will encourage him/her to pursue scientific work and to publish abroad.
Brief syllabus: The practical subject has no outline.
Literature: There is no recommended literature for the practical course.
Language, knowledge of which is necessary to complete a course: Hungarian, Slovak, German, English

Number of credits: 4
Recommended semester/trimester of study: 1.
Level of study: III.
Prerequisites:
Conditions for passing the subject: The doctoral student is required to attend a theological academic conference in Slovakia during the semester. He/she must provide proof of participation to his/her supervisor by means of a certificate of participation issued by the conference organisers. Based on the certificate, the subject leader enters the graduation in the AIS. Evaluation: a - passed b - not passed
Results of education: Knowledge: The PhD student will learn about the scientific conference process. Participation in scientific conferences provides knowledge of the complexity of the structure and organization of a scientific presentation, and of the time limits. Developing contacts with other researchers and doctoral students. Enhance your knowledge by listening to conference presentations. Learn how to apply for conferences. Skills: The doctoral student will acquire skills in attending and behaving at scientific conferences. Based on his/her observations and experience, he/she will see examples of how to respect the time limits, how to give a presentation in a professional and rhetorical way. The presentations will enhance his knowledge and the skills he will acquire. He compares his own knowledge and skills with those of the conference participants. Attitudes: The doctoral student gains experience in the course of scientific conferences, in the structure and delivery of presentations. They will develop a sense of professionalism and, on the basis of the examples they have experienced, will develop criteria for their own scientific presentations. Developing an attitude of speaking in a scientific environment.
Brief syllabus: The practical subject has no outline.
Literature: There is no recommended literature for the practical course.
